WORKSHOP ON STATA

Date of the Program: 29.10.2020-30.10.2020

No. of the Participants: 63

Organized by: Department of Economics

Speaker: Dr. Balakrushna Padhi, Centre for Excellence in Fiscal policy and Taxation, Xavier University, Bhubaneswar, Odisha

Over the past five years, citations to Stata programs in scholarly articles indexed in Google Scholar have increased by 55 per cent to 23,000 citations in 2014. Employers in a wide variety of fields value knowledge of this software tool. Knowledge of statistical software gives students and faculty an edge over others. Considering these things, the department of economics organised a two-day long workshop on Stata on 29th and 30th October, 2020. Dr Balakrushna Padhi, an economist from the Centre for Excellence in Fiscal policy and Taxation, Xavier University, Bhubaneswar, Odisha was the guest expert for the workshop. This practical workshop introduced students to the statistical software Stata and how to use it to carry out statistical analysis. By the end of the workshop, students got familiar with the Stata interface and style of programming language. The department believes this workshop was a good head start for students advancing to learn Statistical programming languages. The workshop enabled students to apply basic statistical knowledge to real-world data and draw conclusions out of it. Participants learned to draw plots, calculate correlations, testing of data among other things. The learning was how the theoretical knowledge is applied through this software to the real-world circumstances. It was well received and 63 students participated in the two days' workshop.
