Speaker:

Dr. Ravneet Kaur, Associate Professor, Department of Electronics, Acharya Narendra Dev College, University of Delhi.

As we all know, communication plays a vital role in our lives. People understand and percept the world through communication. There are a lot of growth opportunities in Communication modes and hence, the topic was selected for the webinar to discuss the past, present and future of Communications.

Dr. Nisha Jha welcomed the speaker of the webinar- Dr. Ravneet Kaur, Associate Professor, AND College, University of Delhi. During the webinar, Dr Kaur talked about the different phases in communications like electronics ages (1930s to 1980s), human to human communication and machine to machine communication which also included use of Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning.

She also touched upon the change in the way of communications while working due to technological advancements. For example, Television, Cell Phones, Internet, E-mails, social media, and Text messaging.

Evolution of communication technology has made progress over thousands of years. This evolution will continue to grow with the changing world. She discussed the practical application of Communication. The students participated with deep interest and asked questions to clear their doubts on the topic.

Ms. Saruchi Tandon delivered a vote of thanks to her on behalf of the Department of Electronics Science.
